

Snake

Waiting there for hours and hours,
Sitting there like a log,
Then all of a sudden,
BANG!

Its jaws snap and rain slavers from its mouth,
It retreats back to the dark, gloomy depths.

He sneaks back up,
Stalking another unlucky victim.
He sits like a log again,
Waiting for his food to glide into his mouth.

Then he strikes again,
And it explodes everywhere.
He then reels himself in again,
Hissing as he goes up.

By Nathan

