

The Sea

Its long, rippling tongue weaving
In and out of the salty rocks.
Seeking sustenance, with hunger
Jumping on and off lily pads catching flies.
Suddenly it leaps,
Then it slaps its hind legs against the sandy floor.
After hunting for food, but no food found,
It drapes off into the distance
Searching for food somewhere else.

By Joseph